The most exhaustive argument, backed by the lightest authority and the best established precedents, will avail nothing where the question is one of force rather than of right; still it strengthens any cause to have justice on its side, and this is the sole reason why the right should be clearly established. To this extent only is argument of any avail.

President Johnson has sent a message to Congress recommending the strength of the strength of the strength of the sent and by which alone we gained the strength of the side and often the first battle of Euli Ran to the end of the war, pledges to the North to get men and money; pledges especially made to the Democracy to get their support in the field and in the field in the elections; pledges made to the South to induce them how to vote the other way, which drew forth a bitter tongue lashing from the Massachusetts charlata.

LONDON, July 17.—In the House of Commons last night Lord Stanley made the important statement that a reply had been sent to the United States Government as to the matter of naturalization. Ministers were ready to accept the American inter-pretation of the question. He thought, therefore, no misunderstanding was possible between the two countries.— Lord Stanley said he had declined to make a treaty at present, as the Royal Commission, considering the general subject, was still in session, and for the additional reason that the time will not permit the passage of a bill at the present session of Parliament.

Washington, July 20, 1868.—The veto of the Freedmen's Bureau bill has been delayed several days. The bill to divide Texas into three States is likely to fail. Bingham, Paine, and Farnsworth oppose it, as they fear these new States will become Democratic.
